December 7th 1885.

Dear Sir. Visiting you last Saturday & hearing from you that you were gradually recovering, I sincerely hope to have the pleasure to see you in the school within a few days. As I told you on that occasion, I went to the school to see Mr Sui to for you. But I am very sorry to write you that he was absent ^{today} and I was obliged to return home without visiting your sick-bed & telling you what Mr Sui would say about your condition. I beg you not to excuse me. I will visit you tomorrow or the day after tomorrow and console you by the best I can.

Wishing sincerely to find you better.

I am

Dear Nakagawa
Your sincere friend,
