An Ennichi

In Tokyo, there are so many temples, dedicated to gods, that almost every day in the month is a festival day, held in memory of one of those gods. Near my house, there is a small temple dedicated to Inari. Though the temple is not magnificent, the festival is very popular. It is called Goto-Inari. The 5th instant was a festival day and I went at night to it. On that night the weather was very clear and the street was so crowded ~~by~~ ^{with} people that I hardly made my way through them. ~~By~~ ^{Along} the road, market gardeners arranged their plants to sell them. I bought ~~from~~ a plant from a market-gardener and returned home at 9 O'clock.
