

one of the three

Chester was a principality in which a particular jurisdiction was administered, & was the head-quarters of the English minstrelsy ever since the time of Edward II when John of Gaunt formed a rival court to elect the king of the minstrels & four regular officers. Edward IV also constituted an organization for the minstrels in which they elected warden & other officers.

24/3/92

Examination on Minstrelsy & Ballads.

K. Natsume.

85
100