心碎如雪 - 泪 + 血

I have full cause to weeping, but this heart
shall break into a hundred thousand flaws
Or ere I'll weep. O fool! I shall go mad
King

Revenge.

Her son lisp'd from the nurse's knee —
 "And if I live to be a man,
 My father's death revenged shall be!"
 The Lay of the Last Minst. Cant. I.

Unglückliches!

Dorffst du das Glosst blüt'ge Tüdel ^{ausmengen}
 Mit der quomsten Notzung eines Katers?
 Hast du der Kinder lieber häupt' wuschidigt?
 Das heudus hühlig'stüm bepfüßt? Das Tschickliff?
 Das Letzte von dem Dürren abgerislet?
 — Zum Himmel hob' ich meine stümm hände, Herflüh' dich und deine Tat — Gewüß hat' ich die feilige Mutter, die du gepfändet — Nichts thut' ich mit dir — Gewordet hast du, ich hob' mein Thümpstus wuschidigt.

Marriage (Tom Jones p. 41)

I have always thought love the only foundation of happiness in a married state, as it can only produce that high and tender friendship which should always be the cement of this union; and, in my opinion, all those marriages which are contracted from other motives are greatly criminal. They are a profanation of a most holy ceremony & generally end in disgust and misery. For surely we may call it a profanation to convert this most sacred institution into a wicked sacrifice to lust or avarice: and what better can be said of those matters for which men are induced merely by the consideration of a beautiful person or a great fortune?

infinite, the need of attaching to the eternal, the inevitable, to that which is true in itself. Morally speaking, God is the deliverer & consoler of the miseries & evils of this world in which we love good but we do vice. Here we see the connecting link between religion and morality. Perhaps religion may not be the theoretical basis of morality,
but it is the foundation of its efficacy.
